SCHOOL AROUND THE WORLD

Children in Japan are the best in the world at reading and Maths! When the answers they give are correct, the teacher draws a circle on their notebooks. When they learn a new lesson, the children who finish the exercises first teach the other pupils! Children around the world usually learn between 26 and 33 letters, but Japanese children learn more than two hundred symbols a year!

In France, children start school when they are 6 years old. Schools there are very modern, many children use computers during their lessons. At school, students learn how to read, write and solve Maths problems, but they also learn how to prevent accidents and how to save a person's life in case of emergency! At the end of primary school, they receive a certificate.

Children in Africa wake up very early to go to school. There aren't many schools and some children walk a long way to get there. In most African schools, children wear uniforms. The most important subjects are reading and writing. There are 40 to 60 pupils in a classroom and only one teacher! During the breaks, the children do sports.
